Meet Rhonda Morgan...

Rhonda began working as our Office Administrative Aide on July 1, 2008 – but she's no stranger to Campbell County or its citizens. Previously, she worked in the County Administration Office for 10 years.

Campbell County has always been Rhonda's home, as well. She has been married to her husband, Jack, for 30 years. Jack has been a member of the Campbell County Rescue Squad for over 32 years, and is currently serving his second term as Captain. Because of Jack's involvement in the Rescue Squad, Rhonda works closely with the Auxiliary. For the past fifteen years, she's helped with everything from entering calls and keeping information to providing support for their fundraisers, dinners, horseshoe tournaments.

Rhonda and Jack have been blessed to be the lucky parents of two extraordinary young men. Her eldest son, Jason, is married and works for Bedford Dispatch and he volunteers for the Lyn Dan Heights Fire Department and Campbell County Rescue Squad. Jason's wife, Brandi is also dear to Rhonda's heart. Brandi works for Yellow Branch Elementary School as an assistant teacher. Rhonda's youngest son is Andrew, and he is making his family proud by serving in the United States Air Force. Right now, he is stationed at Whiteman Air Force Base, located in Missouri.

We welcome Rhonda to our Rec-family!

Upcoming Event—

What is the Right Age to Begin Playing in Youth Sports?

Team sports provide children and youth with many opportunities to grow physically and socially, as well as emotionally. Moreover, physical activities with other children allow them to build social skills through peer interaction. Many parents are concerned about whether or not to allow their children to participate in team sports and, if so, at what age.

Child development experts note that children become interested in team sports around ages 5-6. Some early childhood educators feel that if children learn the importance of cooperating with their peers at a young age, they will be more socially ready for kindergarten and grade school.

Adults must emphasize, however, cooperation over competition in team sports, especially with young children. Adults who supervise and coach need to serve as examples of cooperation, not competition. Nor should they show favoritism to young children based on their demonstrated skills in sports.

Children's (especially boys') motivation to participate in team sports moves from a focus on competition in early childhood to one on cooperation and friendship by the late elementary school years. Thus it's important to help young children advance developmentally to appreciate the cooperativeness of team sports.

Sports provide numerous opportunities for children and teenagers to grow socially, emotionally, and physically. Furthermore, they also allow youth to learn and practice in a competitive environment. While sports may increase children's positive social interaction with adults and one another, they can also create stressful environments for children. For example, adults may place unrealistic pressure on their children to perform. Parents and children must find a balance in regard to how many extracurricular activities children participate in. Team sports participation can be an amazing tool that helps children grow and succeed in their everyday lives.

GET OUT, AND GET MOVING!
